Thesis: Women's Narratives of Their Experiences with the Diagnosis of Borderline Personality Disorder (BPD). This thesis is an affective discourse analysis that seeks to uncover the erasure, harm, depoliticization, and pathologization of the power relationship between psychiatry and women with BPD. The central argument is that, despite psychiatry's knowledge claim of BPD, the affect of women with BPD can inform practice, thinking, and research.

Thesis Director: Dr. Susan Talburt

Committee Members: Dr. Julie Kubala and Dr. Megan Sinnott
